

Put-In/Take-Out Sites

Use this guide as you paddle your way throughout the Glacial Heritage Area. Here are a few items to help you on your way: The Put-In/Take Out (PITO) sites are designated one of three types based on amenities at each site. The three sites are Rustic (red dots), semi-improved (yellow dots) and fully-improved (green dots).

Red dots represent rustic PITO's. These sites are smaller in size and are intended mainly for quick rest stops or as drop-off/ pickup sites for paddlers. They are a natural rest stop with no amenities other than an access point to the water for canoes and kayaks. Little to no designated Parking may be available and is specific to each site.

Yellow dots represent semi-improved PITO's. These sites are moderate in size and can accommodate a fair number of paddlers and their equipment. These sites are intended for rest stops, as drop-off/pickup sites and may have a few amenities. Designated parking is available and is size specific to each site.

Green dots represent fully-developed PITO's. These sites are large in size and can accommodate large paddling groups. These sites are intended for rest stops, drop-off/pickup sites and offer amenities including picnic tables, garbage receptacles, grills, restrooms, piers and ample parking for trucks and trailers.

A sawmill was built on this spot in 1839 followed by a gristmill in 1842. This was the first grist mill in Jefferson County and settlers no longer had to travel to Milwaukee to buy barrels of flour. Both mills were built by Captain Joseph Keyes who was one of Lake Mills' first settlers. A plaque now stands where the mills once stood.

Sandy Beach was once home to the Knickerbocker Ice Company which harvested ice from Rock Lake and stored 100,000 tons of ice at its warehouse. The ice was then loaded onto railroad cars on the nearby Chicago and Northwestern Railroad (now the Glacial Drumlin State Trail) and shipped to Chicago, Milwaukee and Madison. Today, Lake Mills celebrates with the Knickerbocker Ice Festival. A short paddling trip underneath the old railroad trestle takes you to Marsh Lake. The large cattail island in the center of the lake is a great area to fish and see an abundance of wildlife. In the spring, red-winged blackbirds and marsh wrens frequent the island.

A ferry once connected the eastern and western shore of Rock Lake with a ferry service. Even though the ferry is long gone, one can imagine the route from present day Ferry Road on the eastern shore to Ferry Park on the western shore.

Marsh and Mud Lakes via Rock Creek

The Rock Creek begins as it flows north out of Mud Lake to Marsh and Rock Lakes (this is the only navigable stretch of Rock Creek). It then flows east through the Mill Pond, through the Lake Mills State Fish Hatchery, then northward underneath I-94 where it opens up into Hoopers Mill Pond. It flows further north until emptying into the Crawford River, north of Milford.
- 10 Sandhill Station Campground Lat. 43° 2' 46.8" Lon. -88° 54' 55.34" Access on Mud Lake Road off of HWY A, year round tent camping, drinking water, restrooms, picnic tables, parking, trash receptacles, hiking and bike trails. The campground is within the Lake Mills Wildlife Area in a preserved oak savanna, the Glacial Drumlin Bike Trail is nearby to the north. Mud Lake has a good population of panfish, bass and northern pike and you are sure to see a wide variety of marsh birds on this peaceful lake.

Paddling is done best in the morning before the 11:00 AM No Wake Rule. Ole Evinrude built one of the first outboard motors and had the first test run on Lake Ripley in 1907. It was here that he began his company and began to produce Evinrude boat motors. The state's record large mouth bass came from Lake Ripley in 1940. It weighed 11 lbs. and 3 oz.

Red Cedar Lake

- 12 Red Cedar Lake State Natural Area Lat. 42° 59' 14" Lon. -88° 58' 50.87" Access on HWY 12, west of the public launch on Brossig Lane and across from Meadow Drive, limited parking, must portage down a maintained path, grassy launch, this is a deeper part of the lake than the public launch. The shoreline of Red Cedar Lake is completely natural with no buildings. It is rimmed with cattail and bulrush stands. The peninsula that breaks the lake into a western and eastern basin is wooded. The lake is home to bluegills, bass and northern pike. The vegetative habitat surrounding the lake makes it an ideal home for marsh wrens, swamp sparrows, yellow warbler and yellow throats. Wood ducks, black-crowned night herons and sandhill cranes also frequent the lake.
- 13 Red Cedar Lake Launch Lat. 42° 59' 1.7" Lon. -88° 58' 26.44" Access on Brosig Lane off of HWY 12, parking lot, the channel that leads to the lake can be weedy and hard to paddle through at times. An old legend has it that a sea monster once inhabited Red Cedar Lake. In 1891, a local farmer claimed to have lost sheep and hogs to the monster who would leave partially devoured bodies in the mud. Fear spread that the 50-60 foot long creature with spines down its back would eventually make it to Lake Ripley as it was believed that an underground river connected the two lakes. This caused panic to the residents of Lake Ripley with many residents closing up their summer cottages and heading home early.

The brick house to the east of the launch is a part of the historic Carcajou Hunt Club, founded in 1896. The lake was a favorite for duck hunters who came from all over the country to hunt. At the southern terminus of Winnie Ha Ha Road lies Indian Mound Park filled with 11 earthen effigy mounds that are thought to be built between 300 and 1642 AD by groups of semi-nomadic American Indians.
